

Contents

Acknowledgements	i
Foreword – from the Minister	ii
Invitation from the Chair	iii
Executive summary	vii
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Raising the bar for prevention	1
1.2 Setting targets for obesity, tobacco and alcohol	2
1.3 Understanding the challenges	3
1.4 About prevention	3
1.5 A framework for prevention	5
1.6 Principles for preventative health	5
1.7 Working together	8
2 The case for prevention: overweight and obesity	9
2.1 The scale of the epidemic	9
2.2 High-risk groups	10
2.3 The need for urgent action	10
2.4 The costs of overweight and obesity	11
2.5 Challenges	12
2.6 Halting the epidemic	13
2.7 Priorities for action	14
3 The case for prevention: tobacco	19
3.1 The current situation	19
3.2 Historical trends in mortality	20
3.3 High-risk groups	21
3.4 Benefits from reducing smoking levels	21
3.5 Challenges	21

3.6	Future outlook	22
3.7	Priorities for action	23
4	The case for prevention: alcohol	29
4.1	The current situation	29
4.2	Patterns of drinking	30
4.3	High-risk groups	32
4.4	Benefits of reform	32
4.5	Challenges	33
4.6	Future outlook	36
4.7	Priorities for action	36
5	Supporting prevention	43
5.1	Common aspects across obesity, tobacco and alcohol	43
5.2	Support structures	44
5.3	Major policy imperatives to strengthen support systems	45
6	Measuring performance	47
6.1	Choosing performance indicators	47
6.2	Monitoring the indicators	50
6.3	Setting targets	50
6.4	Governance and performance monitoring	50
6.5	The monitoring system	51
7	Conclusion	53
7.1	Towards a National Preventative Health Strategy	53
	References	55